Formatting Packet Headers in a Communications Adapter

Abstract of the Disclosure

A system and method are provided in which message packet header information is rapidly formatted via communications adapter hardware using script commands supplied from the internal memory of the adapter. The formatter gathers specified header information and reassembles into appropriately positioned nibbles and bytes.